China's Generation Gap Part 1.

Chinese Journalist Haining Liu was born into the 'one-child generation' in the early 1980s. She explores how these political, social and economic changes have affected the relationship between old and young in China. She talks to people who grew up during the Cultural Revolution and how those who lived under strict communism relate to their children who have had much more material, individualistic lives. She also explores new attitudes to work and education as more people choose to study and work and outside the state system. (BBC / Just Radio)
