4:06 The Sunday Feature

The Future of Our Seas

Our fates are tied to the fate of our oceans. But they are under threat from climate change, acidification, pollution, and overfishing. In this roundtable discussion from the University of Auckland, Professors Simon Thrush and Nordin Hasan talk with Dr Rochelle Constantine and Dr Dan Hikuroa about tipping points and the importance of protecting not only marine species which are at risk, but marine ecosystems. Along the way, a story of whale poo in the Southern Ocean suggests the importance of integration to research and action. Dr Maria Armoudian is in the chair.

5:00 The World at Five

5:11 Heart and Soul

Guardians of Creation

Pope Francis has joined the voices of Islamic, Jewish, Sikh and Hindu leaders, amongst others, in calling for action on climate change, imbuing the debate with a moral and spiritual imperative. And it is not just religious leaders. People of faith across the religious spectrum and around the world are actively involved in practical projects to protect the environment and raise awareness. Ritula Shah visits some of these projects and meets the people running them to discover the special dynamic they bring to the environmental movement and find out whether they can harness religious conviction to effect global policy.
